READING SCOTLAND

with Karine Polwart

Karine Polwart is a Scottish singer, composer, theatre-maker, storyteller and writer. Much of Karine's music and writing is steeped in place, hidden histories, scientific curiosity and folklore. As a singer and songwriter, she is a multiple award winner at the BBC Radio 2 Folk Awards, including three times for her original songs. She has written to commission for theatre, animation, radio documentary and choir. In 2019, her Scottish Songbook celebration of Scottish pop music reached the UK Top 40 Album Charts. Karine's debut work for theatre Wind Resistance was produced in collaboration with the Royal Lyceum Theatre for the 2016 Edinburgh International Festival. The show is rooted in the landscape, ecology, and history of Midlothian and The Scottish Borders. Enough is Enough is her latest large-scale participative commission, for street bands and community choir, centred on the COP26 Climate Conference which Glasgow hosts in November 2021.
