SCOTLAND

with Meg Bateman

Meg Bateman is a Professor of Gaelic at Sabhal Mòr Ostaig in Skye (University of the Highlands and Islands). She learned Gaelic in South Uist and Aberdeen University where she taught for many years. Her teaching and research interests are in literature, philosophy, language, art and Gaelic mythology. She has co-edited four anthologies of historical Gaelic verse and has published several volumes of her own poetry. In our (virtual) SCOTLAND LIBRARY, she will present her most recent academic book Window to the West: Culture and Environment in the Scottish Gàidhealtachd (2020).
